

To Our Valued Patients:

The providers at Rhett Women's Center are committed to providing you with the most up to date and most comprehensive care possible. We make it our priority to continue to study and stay informed of available treatment options that give you the best opportunity to create health in your body, by addressing specific symptoms and reducing your risk of developing chronic disease.

An important component of providing comprehensive care and health creation includes a focus on patient education. We want to ensure that you, the patient, have a full and complete understanding of recommended treatment options, as well as the risks, benefits, and alternatives to those treatment options.

We also feel that it is important for you to understand that there are significant controversies regarding the best methods of diagnosis, treatment, and management relating to optimal hormone balance and optimal thyroid function. We (the providers at RWC) have undergone extensive training in these areas and feel confident that we are providing you with options that will improve your health and enhance your life.

You have discussed your treatment options with your RWC provider; in an effort to promote open communication and patient education, included in this packet is an extremely detailed informed consent. We encourage you to read this consent thoroughly prior to moving forward with or continuing recommended treatment.

Please let us know if you have questions regarding these consents or any other part of your treatment plan.
